

ABAPRI (Alice B, April)

Alice is an upper middle class patient with advanced skin cancer. She prefers to go by Ally. It's important to Ally that her fears and concerns are acknowledged throughout treatment. She had a negative experience with care in the past during which a doctor dismissed her concerns, and her cancer advanced leading to a more serious diagnosis.

Ally is a mother and grandmother who loves to garden. She travels often, multiple times a year, to visit her children in Florida, go on worldwide tours and cruises with husband and locally to lakes with friends. Being able to travel, garden and see her family is important in her care journey.

Ally also volunteers at her local humane society on Wednesday mornings, taking dogs for walks. Scheduling her visits to preserve this time is important to her.

Ally has experienced depression in the past, and would appreciate mental health support when needed.
