

DO – 1983

D shared she is feeling weak after her most recent chemo treatment. It has been a blur for her in the last 3 days. She received a diagnosis that she has 3-6 months to live. It is a great shock.

D works in programming and loved it. She really misses it. Her travel afforded her the chance to travel. Whenever she has the chance, D enjoys being outdoors and in nature or at the beach.

Starting out young, she takes great pride her owning her own car and apartment. Her apartment may be modest in size, but she took great care in decorating it and enjoyed throwing parties for friends. She has many happy families.

D has a good support system in her friends and family. She does feel a little guilty about the time her parents are spending in hospital with her. Most recently she was busy with work and had some distance with them, and now she has a desire to pay them back for their support.

A main goal is to regain her strength. Overall, she feels comfortable, but doesn't always sleep well at night. She is also worried about how to pay her hospital bills. I will ask Finance to come in and have a chat with her, when the time is right.
