

KL 09-10

KL feels he is still reeling from his recent diagnosis of cancer. He is worried about how this will impact his partner and his young child. He is concerned about the future and what this may look like, wanting to ensure their financial stability and also worried about how much he wants to bring his partner in on his diagnosis. He does not want to be a burden or add any stress to her. It has felt like a lot of information coming to him and is overwhelming.

KL shared his world began to have meaning when he met his partner and then his world was turned upside down, in a good way. Having a child added to that, and everything for him centres around them and their happiness. He relishes in the simple things, spending time with them and the things they do together as a family. Walks in the park, meals, playtime. While he navigates these uncertain times ahead, his goal will be to continue his focus on ensuring his family is cared for, maintaining hope that he is part of their future however if things take a different turn, he wants to ensure they are looked after financially.
